

The Daily Courant.

Thursday, July 9. 1719.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated July 14.

Milan, June 28.

WE hear from Turin, that the Night between the 17th and 18th, Count Polchiet, Commandant of that Place, accompanied by an Auditor of War, and attended by a Company of the Regiment of Savoy, went to an Inn where lodged M. Cini, and declared to him in the King of Sardinia's Name, that he was a Prisoner of State; upon which he took him into his Coach, and carried him to the Citadel, where an Apartment was prepared for him; a Captain of the Guard was given him for a Guard, and he is treated with particular Distinction by the Count de la Roque, Governour of the Citadel. All his Papers have been seized, and his Servants have also been secured in the Citadel. It was given out, he was come to the Court of Turin with a Commission from the Emperour, and some Days before his Confinement he had an Audience of the King of Sardinia at Rivoli. But it was found out that he was not come directly from Vienna, but from Rome, and that in his Way he had been at the Courts of Modena, Florence, and Parma: He was born a Subject of the Pope. It is said the King of Sardinia has dispatched an Express to Vienna, to acquaint the Imperial Court with his seizing, the true Occasion of which it not yet known.

From the Hague Courant, dated July 14.

Vienne, July 1. Letters from Belgrade say, the Exchange of the Embassies of both Empires was performed on the 15th past with great Solemnity, two Leagues beyond Paragin, near 3 Columns which had been erected there on a Heath, Musick playing on both Sides. The Turks after having washed themselves, presented the Imperialists with Coffee, and were reciprocally entertained by the Imperialists with Lemonade, Sweatmeats, and other Refreshments. The Turkish Ambassadors with his Retinue consisting of 873 Persons, was since arrived at Soreika, 8 Leagues from Belgrade, and a House belonging to Prince Eugene was fitted up for his Reception at the latter Place. But as the Retinue of Count Virmond does not exceed 600 Persons, it is believed he will not be allowed to bring with him hither a more numerous Train than our Minister carries to Constantinople. The Burgers of this Place are daily performing their Exercises, in order to appear in Arms at the Publick Entry of the Ambassadors of the Porte. It is advised from Rome, that Count Gallas has intercepted some Letters of great Consequence, dispatched by Cardinal Acquaviva for Madrid, whereby the Intrigues of two Italian Princes with the Spanish Court have been discovered. The King of Sicily has given Orders to arrest one M. Cini, who formerly was known here, being under the Protection of Count Stella, and had found Means to make himself useful; but being suspected of underhand Dealings, he stole away, and lived for some time in the Ecclesiastical State, where he was born, from thence he went to Turin, styling himself the Emperour's Agent, under which Character he even had Audience of the King of Sardinia at Rivoli. But upon Discovery that he corresponded with the Emperour's Enemies, he was secured in his Lodgings and carried under the Guard of a Company to the Citadel of Turin, and all his Papers were taken from him.

From the Amst. Courant, dated July 13.

Vienne, July 1. We hear from Rome, that Cardinal Acquaviva having sent an Express to Madrid, under a Convoy of 50 armed Men, of which Count Gallas having had timely Notice, he sent 30 other sturdy Fellows, who overtook the former, and obliged them to deliver the Letters, by which it is said, it appears that two Italian Princes had formed some Designs prejudicial to the Emperour's Interest.

From the Harlem Courant, dated July 13 and 14.

Berlin, July 7. The Number of our Forces are said to be already increased to 75000 Men, and are still augmenting. The Ministers of this Court have had several Conferences with the Minister of Sweden, who has sent an Express to Stockholm. The Court has been in some Pain for M. Malch, who went some time ago with a secret Commission to Stockholm, and it was thought he had been lost at Sea, not being heard of since his Departure; but we have had Advice since, that he has been in Sweden, without any Success in his Negotiation, and was taken on his Return on board a Ship bound for Colberg in Pomerania, by a Russian Privateer, who carried him to Revel, where he made himself known to the Czar, to whom his Commission seemed to give no less Uneasiness, than the Negotiation of Mr. Whitworth, the King of Great Britain's Envoy, had largely occasioned to him, and upon which he has sent Colonel Hennings hither. M. Malch has since been permitted to go to Prussia in his Way hither, and is soon to be followed by M. Tolstoy, the Czar's Privy Counsellour; and M. Hennings is to proceed to Cassel.

From the Amst. Courant, dated July 13.

Amsterdam, July 14. Letters from Stockholm of the 17th past say, a Poll Tax, and another Tax on every one's Possessions have been laid on the People, which it is reckoned will bring in 4 or 5 Millions, to be paid in Mint-Tokens and Money-Bills, by which Means a considerable Part of the Debt of the Crown will be sunk. It is reported from Copenhagen, that a British Frigate lies in the Port of Helsingborg in Schoonen, to carry over to Lupeck the two Counts Biecke, one of whom is to go to Vienna, and the other to Paris.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated July 14.

Amsterdam, July 14. Some Advice from Hambourg say the Conferences in Aland have been broke off, the Queen of Sweden having intimated to Baron Lilienstet, that her Majesty thought it more proper to negotiate a general Peace, than to conclude a separate one with the Czar. This revives the Hopes that a general Peace will be procured by the good Offices of the King of Great Britain at the Congress of Brunswick. It is confirmed that the Czar is sailed from Petersbourg, with the rest of his Fleet; so that it will shortly appear what his Designs are. The Swedes in the mean while have taken the necessary Precautions to guard their Coasts.

Advice of the Master Weavers to the Journeymen their Trade.

Brethren,

THE Violence which many have run into of late, upon account of the Wear of Printed Calicoes, have given us great Disturbance and Concern for those of you that have suffered yourselves to be so far misled, as to act both against your Duty and Interest.

We are very sensible of the great Decay of our Trade; and that it proceeds chiefly from the use of Printed Calicoes; and we heartily lament the sad Condition of Multitudes of Families in our Trade, that are in great Distress at this time for Want of Employment. But we beg you to consider coolly the Consequences of such Outrages as have lately been committed, in Defiance of Law and all good Government.

There are proper Seasons, as well as proper Methods to be used to get Redress of Grievances: And sure you cannot think that we, who are Fellow-Sufferers with you, will be wanting at the proper Season to lay our Case before the Parliament, where no doubt the same will be duly considered by those who in every thing show they have the Good of their Country at Heart. And this was intended to have have been done last Winter; but as there was then a Bill of great Importance and Difficulty depending for the better preventing the clandestine Running of Foreign Goods upon us, it was thought most advisable to see that Bill pass first into an Act which could not be done till the rising of the Parliament.

You must needs be sensible that violent Means can bring no Redress in such a Case as ours, it being only to be had in Parliament; but it may possibly remove the Remedy at a greater Distance, by rendering those who use such Methods odious to the whole Nation; and so we may lose our Friends: For after such Proceedings, who can appear for us?

We therefore earnestly intreat and beseech you all, for the sake of the Common Good, and your own Welfare in particular, to live quietly and peaceably, and not to insult or molest any of your Fellow Subjects on any Account whatsoever; and that you shew yourselves upon all Occasions dutiful and loyal Subjects to his Majesty, the best of Kings. And this you ought to be the more careful of doing at this Time, since it has appeared that there have been seditious People who have endeavoured to stir you up to Tumult: And 'tis to be feared there will be those likewise who will take Advantage of your Follies, and endeavour to represent you as Persons disaffected, thereby to deprive you of the Favour of the Government. But as we know the far greater Part of you are well affected to his Majesty, we hope you will not fail to give all the Proofs of it that are in your Power; and there shall be nothing wanting on our part to serve you.

Weavers-Hall, July 1, 1719.
THE above Paper being brought to the Court of Assistants of the Company of Weavers, London, this Day held, was read Paragraph by Paragraph, and approved of by the said Court, and ordered to be signed by their Clerk, and then printed and published.
